Celebrated artist Abraham Hunter’s Safe Harbor captures light and dimension with his distinctive and enduring style that always draws you into his paintings for a closer look. Once an essential beacon of light for sailors to navigate dangerous coastlines, lighthouses have been replaced by modern navigational systems designating them to a nostalgic symbol of our past. The featured panel is complemented by a variety of prints reflecting the water and sky from the deepest darks to the lightest lights in various shades of peach, cream, and blue. The border stripe, lighthouses and toile complete the coordination. A selection of Toscana prints are also offered.
